

NEAL SHEOREY

EVP, Chief Financial Officer

Neal Sheorey serves as executive vice president and chief financial officer for Albemarle. In this role, he is responsible for all financial management aspects of the company's operations, including investor relations and internal audit. His role also includes oversight of corporate sustainability, information technology, global business services and real estate.

Prior to joining Albemarle in 2023, Sheorey served for more than 20 years in progressive leadership roles in finance, business and corporate organizations for Dow, a global materials science company. He served as vice president of Dow's Coatings and Performance Monomers business unit, where he was responsible for the group's strategy, profitability and growth initiatives. Previously, Sheorey served as Dow's vice president of investor relations, senior director of corporate development and global finance director for the Chemicals business group.

Sheorey holds a Master of Business Administration from the University of Michigan and a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Northwestern University.
